Note, That for every Letter or Packet, Directed to any of the above-mentioned Places to London, you are to pay one Penny at the Receiving-house and nothing for the Delivery. But from London to the above-said Places, the Messengers are allowed to take one Penny for each Single Letter and no more.

And considering divers of the Places are remote, it is desired you put in your Letters in Due time (before Eight of the Clock for Night and Six of the Clock for Morning) the Receiving-houses from whence they will be collected and brought into the proper Offices, by which diverse of the Country Messengers go on their Walks by Nine of the Clock that same Morning and then will give a Day's time in the delivery of such Letters as are more remote and collected and delivered but at certain times a Day.

Note, it is further notified, That all Gentlemen and Tradesmen, and Foreign and Domestick Merchants, are observed to send their Letters to the Chief Office before Five every Day at Twelve a Clock; and Letters then come to hand into the Receiving-houses in the Country Towns, about Nine or Ten the same Night following, and by Person (either in City or Country) that delivers out the Penny Papers, before Eight in the Morning, are brought home by Ten.
